A World of Music with Todd Green

Multi-instrumentalist Todd Green plays over 30 string, flute and percussion instruments from all over the world. His custom-built electronics system allows him to layer instrument sounds as he plays and in effect turns him into a high-tech one-man-band of World Music. His concert features original music inspired by more than a half dozen cultures in the Middle East, Asia, South America and Africa.

Q: Why should we come to his concert if he has already performed at school?

A: The two performances complement each other. Whereas the program at school was a quick show-and-tell-type demonstration of the instruments themselves, Todd Green's concert is a musical adventure exploring the musical styles of many different cultures. Another way to look at it is: If you think of the school program as "learning the alphabet", the concert could be likened to an exciting "story telling"—an unforgettable experience that promises to broaden everyone's musical and cultural horizons!
